DAY BY DREA

June 20: The Big Day for the newspapers

Unfortunately the departure of 260 NSW recruits from Sydney Central Railway Station for Port Moresby was marred somewhat by a skirmish in which police tore down posters and generally misbehaved demonstrators from the New June 5-51 Movement and the Youth Corps Against Communism.

Of course, it was terribly thoughtful of the police — including "men from the CIB Special Branch, two sections of the Army's detective force, Commonwealth Security and Railway detectives" (SMH, July 1), all cheerfully in plainclothes — to come along on their off night and swell the numbers of "hundreds and hundreds" of the plainclothes, and to demonstrate what years of discipline and training had done for their strong, right arms.

Real, of course, it was a deadly reminder for the new recruits of the kind of freedom of speech and of action they might ultimately be called upon to lay down their lives to save.

JULY 2: The N.S.W. State ALP Executive announced that it would not endorse the Sydney ALP Alternative-Moratorium Poster and banner for the forthcoming Sydney Gay Games

And I wonder the tendency to vote on and vote against against a Caucus decision to allow putting in Motion Paper during the 1974 Royal Easter Show. All Morans were strongly right against Canada but he did not speak against a decision to allow his attendance in the 1974 Royal Easter Show.

Advocate knows the Editor is not very liberal but the Labor Party recently made them look that way.

JULY 6: External Affairs Minister, Paul Hareak, retained down votes in his second term (Australia's) 10th of September.

"We are supporting the South Vietnamese Government against aggression, not because we have been told to, but on the basis of our own right judgment of the situation. I'm happy our decision coincides with the judgment of America that it is the best way of helping world peace."

Oh, then happy coincidence!

JULY 8: Big Transport Strike in Sydney

Very nothing.

The kind of break from the daily grind that everyone privately admits but publicly declares to be a kind of construction between motorist and their pick-ups! The new NSW Transport Minister, Merril Leitch, he travels in public transport, accepted a favourable average and many inches of sympathy by personally carrying him from the chaos caused by the selfish transport workers.

People providing a public utility should not be allowed to strike. Arbitration is good enough for them. Or better still, they could follow the example of another occupational group providing a government utility — the doctors — and decide on their salaries amongst themselves.

JULY 9: M. G. P. Bureau Managing Director of Igo-Ki Pty. Ltd., had some strong words to say about the way in which the Commonwealth Government had treated its Civil Aviation law as an effect to block Igo-Ki appeal to the Privy Council.

Igo-Ki maintained operations in Adelaide in 1964 with two small trucks. Today it delivers more than 10,000 consignments every working day.

That's insurance for real! But to our Privy Council Appeal, Australia is not the only quality industry in the world.

Perhaps Igo-Ki had better stop being so conspicuous and learn how to go in people's pockets.

July 9: GME announced that their 1964 budget — a mere £18.6 million — was down on last year's figure (£19.2 million) but that a larger proportion (£3 million) was being sent back to America.

New Zealand's Prime Minister, Holyday, flew into Sydney to tell reporters:

New Zealand will not be prepared to send additional troops to Port Moresby tomorrow New Zealand. We see an independent nation.

That makes one of us.

JULY 11: Queen Anne-Marie of Greece gave birth to Corfu to a bounding 9 lb. 5 oz. baby girl — her first — who became held to the Greek throne. Corfu immediately embarked on 3 days of festivities, including torch light processions and dancing in the streets.

Less than a week later King Constantine — Queen Anne's young husband — gave birth to a burning near-neuroticism slinger when he forced his Prime Minister to resign. Admitted, immediately followed on 3 days of festivities, including demonstrations and protest meetings.

The little Greek baby may be her but isn't her daddy can hold onto his throne for her.

JULY 12: Edward Newman (Sydney) of various religious denominations made to the Prime Minister expressing concern in his policy on Vietnam and his attitude to peace congress.

"The Prime Minister has stated that all peace rallies held in Australia have been organized by Communists. It is obvious ministers who have been actively planning and conducting peace gatherings are not."

• "In the Prime Minister attempting to silence public debate and to suppress, by law the free people of Australia."

is a word yes.

JULY 12: But-Song Heavy Gies was dismissed from the N.S.W. Police Force for disobeying an order to return to work. He had previously been fined £10 for the same offence.

Two detectives are currently conducting

July 13: The Big Bang got together with the team.

The newspapers met along their most all sequacious journalists and then read about the way he handled their rocky questions about new laws for the troops and his opinion of peace substituted.

The love ball was going to successfully that time was that we are only in Vietnam at the discretion of the Saigon government which by a soft sigh of his back hand breaks (usually) possible with the in violation of the South Vietnamese people).

July 14: Coca-Cola Bottlers (Wellbourne) Pty. Ltd. were fined £20 in Floodplain Court for having sold a bottle of drink whose sediments included one small mouse.

Your friendly Coca-bottler has always boasted that his product "had that little something extra". Once, this little something was cocaine and alcohol (see 02 April 1965); now, apparently, it's mice.

a departmental inquiry with allegations that Gies recently set up a booth in Kings Cross. If Gies had remained in the Police Force he would have been forced to answer any embarrassing questions they might have wanted to ask him. But now, alas, he is no longer obliged to answer anything.

JULY 15: A fire in one of Melbourne's largest bookshops, Macmillan & Co. Ltd., destroyed more than $50,000 worth of stock.

Police are still investigating a launch that the book burning fire was started by the "revlon" You Said to celebrate the naming ceremony of Mr. Rybak a few days later (See July 19).

A news item from the "Sydney Morning Herald" for July 18:

MELBOURNE. Thursday.—The nomination to Sir Robert Menzies in Japan, his birthplace, will cost £2,000 — £100 to be contributed by the State of Victoria.

It sounds as if the nomination to Sir Robert will take the form of a contribution.

Tonight the Japan Store Council approved plans for a 6000 space from an 80 concrete beam, topped by a 25 beam there.

According to our spies, there will be deductive values involved upon the line, one of which will run something like this:

There was no old fat man from Japan. Those facts and what else were quite accurate. Though no military one, He was and drank in a just. According to old tales are temporary.

JULY 16: King David told reporters in Perth (AUSTRALIAN July 16) that Japan's plan for an interstate air freight service would not succeed, which seemed very true. He also forecast a big response to Australian air freight services generally, although while the present government policy remains, he was too soon for a third air freight service such as the one proposed by him, which might serve a fairly grossly as made in those who did not know, King David. "That is not my job," he said, "but I am a politician, it is my job to say, Sir, my job."

July 17: Harrier IV at More (PICTURE)

And so began that seemingly interminable rock of gains incommensurable photographs of Good knows what, but anyone was prepared to guess.

July 18, France proposed to the U.S.A. against a "spy flight" over the Pantanal nuclear plant, which will supply uranium for France's proposed H-bombs and nuclear submarines.

The plane apparently made two flights on July 18 the Sunday Star was a story on the Kennedy myth.

We are told that Jacqueline Kennedy will give 5,000 letters and letters of praise each week from people "who can't forget" 50,000 people every week the past Kennedy's Arlington cemetery where at least 10 cost money are performed each day (20 at weekends).

There is hardly a town in America that doesn't have an airport, a school, an arrival or a hospital named after President Kennedy. On July 15 it was announced that the last Australian events from the 123 million Women's Churchill Memorial Fund will be made in November 29.

On the same day (July 15), a great man, by the name of Adlai Stevenson, died. It was not the same day as any American newspaper since we had Adlai Stevenson Memorial Fund, and his widow will not live as well as the lovely jacket.

He was a descendant of the first select a great liberal, an intellectual and a wit that he looked the common touch, driven out of state and the ability to supply men to the level. The police demands.

When, during his 1955 presidential campaign, Stevenson was charged with being an egotist, he retorted: "Egotists must. You have nothing to lose but your politeness."

Democratic Party organizers warned him that the President of the United States in the public view, was not supposed to be funny. And they were right. He lost two presidential campaigns by an enormous margin in one of the worst Presidents the U.S. has ever had (that).

So much for democracy.

over the planet and systematically took. Its photographs that the Yanks claimed that it had been blown off-course because of a thunderstorm. ☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Mr Arthur Rybak returned from his overseas survey of the Photography Scene with the conclusion: "We have no citizenship in Western art but we are against obscene publications."

While evasive, Arthur managed to read Henry Miller's "The Black Book" and "I read it just to make sure that our policy is right."

All the close contact with obscenity seems to have had remarkably little effect on Mr Rybak — he's still the same old one.

July 18, Japan took, in a private audience with the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mr. Tominaga, a peace, peace, Japanese wish for peace and that much effort were particularly needed in South East Asia "which gives us ground for so much concern." It is believed that the Foreign may go to the U.S. in October to issue a plea for world peace.

It seems to be taking a long time for the Pope's desire for peace in Vietnam to percolate through to the Australian Catholic hierarchy which has recently been up to point at Mount Meak, (a Jay Catholic) for emergency a similar duty.

Apparently in this country the Pope is more inflexible on and less sympathetic than judges.

JULY 21: Japanese did not decide to support an representative in the United Nations, Judge Arthur Goldberg. The good judge is better known in the U.S. as "Goldberg (Judge) who has been named into a stable may be out soon "Mr. Ed."

Telling of Mr. Ed, the Sydney Morning Herald seems to have been as provoked by his bad public image that they sent a representative to get the real guy straight from the lion's mouth.

"Last Australian before Mr. Ed is to be dispatched of their, break of speech, and on object for more, it is so well in point as that he is not, reluctant, but a shrewd and clever man. We'll see..."

Mr. William Buckland may have been a "quiet millionaire" once, but now he's dead he's certainly among a lot of noise. First his wife then his son, and now his daughter, have claimed they didn't get a bag enough out from his £4 million estate, which was mainly left to charity. Apparently no longer can you be a sole judge of what your dependants are worth. The courts will have the final say.

They will be done, but the courts will decide if they will be executed.

Ed A. Palmer, again, heard evidence from Melbourne C.I.B. detectives supporting their claim for increased special allowances.

Suspects, they said, were becoming harder to interrogate because they were learning more about C.I.B. theories, and police methods through television, and freely available literature.

It meant spreading more time on time, and providing them with more and more for increase in charges, and to gain their attention.

Courts of recent times were also requiring more consideration of such times than in the past, they claimed.

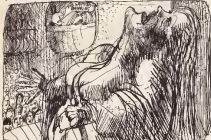

Sen - Detective Carl George Abney of the Ontario Mount, and Detective Denis Robert Stacey of Blenheim O.T.B., said they would suspect more and more and would increase out of their own pockets.

A NIGHT AT THE OPERA

It is, after all, a lot to spend on an evening's entertainment, even to see Joan Sutherland's opening night. On the international entertainment market, that is roughly equivalent to twenty Continental movies.

So I bought instead five bob's worth of newspapers in the days before and after the great event and was able to so completely immerse myself in the glorifying atmosphere they communicated that I feel able to write almost as if I had been right there next to Lady Myer, whom the Sydney Mirror nominated as the leader of the final ovation for the opening "Lucia" performance on July 10.

If I had any doubts about what to expect of the newspapers were eager to give me preview photographs of Sutherland singing to mad hordes. Even an Illustrated, the latter remarked, it is there—the mystery, the majesty and the splendour of Grand Opera.

The field was even level enough to tell us exactly when we were expected to sleep. The opera will be postponed or just postponed, or not stopped altogether, at two points. Joan Sutherland's first appearance is the second night of Act I and her last is the first scene of Act III. (Note that there seemed little chance for any guests while the Diva sang around waiting for the audience to return it was dipping low.)

When the great evening at last arrived I was at a loss to know where to take my seat with The Australian. Martin Latham somewhere backstage (We realize The Australian is in difficulties but you'd think they'd be able to afford it.) With most of the press and critics, that of course? Or with the Australian social reporter, who apparently spent all night in the lobby?

It was hard to find a word to describe the atmosphere. It was considerably too difficult to find those willing to say The Australian pronounced it magnificent. Sutherland herself called it perhaps the greatest artistic event she had ever

- WHO do you consider the most successful politician in Australian history?
- HOW has he achieved this distinction? (Choose from the following answers.)
- a. Because the Opposition is currently
    - by itself by a nasty vicious splinter group (by stand of singular leadership).
  - b. Because he successfully took over some of the more appealing points in the opposition platform and took credit for the few creative contributions to Australian welfare, such as the Immigration programme, the Australian National University and the Henry Moncrieff Library, initiated by the previous Labor Government.
  - c. By outwitting the sale of Australia's assets to various countries at an easy solution to the balance of payments problem and a convenient method of maintaining a balance prosperity.
  - d. Because Australia has been extraordinarily fortunate in having an unusually long run of good seasons and enjoyed high international demand for her primary products.
  - e. Because of some discussion at other national meetings, especially from one, unknown, obscure and often somewhat, which he has liberally handed over to foreign countries for short term gain.
  - f. Because of huge wind sales to a country whose government he refused to negotiate.
  - g. Because of huge wind and air sales in a country where people prefer to report to let him lose.
  - h. Because he is a man of great eloquence at parties, the greater eloquence of his government, capable of making every shadowy ink in the headline's brief case to further his egoistic needs by remaining in power.
- WHO was the man—
- WHO'S promising military career was cut short by the outbreak of the last World War?
- WHO pleaded for negotiation with Hitler right through the shooting? (The Argus 12/12/38, page 31) — an effort should be made to appreciate the German viewpoint. . . I think there was a great deal to be said for Germany rearming. . . 8/8/38 "Germany's intentions entirely defensive. . . My recent visit to Germany was entirely illuminating. I cannot help feeling . . . that they do not understand the British attitude."
- WHO (The Argus 17/9/37, page 2) in the course of ongoing against outcropping the inevitability of war with Germany in 1937 said, "It is fantastic and deterring policy to line up the world into two camps. . . both sides must be heard. . .

- I am not in favour of destruction, but when government another country chooses to adopt it as a method for this country, not for me. . . the world could not go to war through procedures and precedent."
- WHO (The Argus 30/4/37, page 2) in 1937 when Japan walked out of the League of Nations and had been causing out a military mission of China for some six years, received the health of the Emperor of Japan on his birthday and told that he was convinced that Japan and Australia had the same desire for peace in the Pacific?
- WHO taught the "Wounded Warriors" when they refused to lead sheep lines to help the Japanese soldiers further their desire for peace?
- WHICH Australian Prime Minister, like the British Prime Minister Chamberlain, proved utterly incapable of preserving the war against Hitler and got tested out when his last was out?
- WHICH government was responsible for the exorbitant of Australian spending on Woomers?
- WHO, nevertheless, has the audacity to claim that his is the only patriotic party?
- WHOSE solution to the Berlin problem was "to blow one way or the other?"
- WHO returned from overseas in 1931 and advised as to prepare his own with Russia in three years time?
- WHO, just prior to a General Election, bought the diffusion of a far Russian magazine for $5,000 and used his wild allegations to smear the Opposition?
- WHO completely failed to prove any of these allegations and presented evidence as to?
- WHO called his machine "a curious sort of sheep, not even an Australia" but refused to appear as Australian on German-Gauleiters?
- WHO, when he saw that his policies were not going to work if the international money market dried up, sent his Treasurer to Washington and offered Diggins for Belgium?
- WHO was the only Commonwealth Prime Minister to speak in favour of Dr. Verwoerd, and the only one to speak against Wilson? (Millions wear when Wilson died, how many will wear at when he dies?)
- WHO has consistently opposed every progressive motion at GW?
- WHAT sales reflection would you make on the state of political life in the country which has effected the most drastic in less than twenty years like an eventful election?
- WHAT sales reflection would you make on the state of public opinion in this country when his latest entrance, the commitment of forces to fight in the last animal war in Asia — combined with every specimen and recent phrase and all the international atmosphere and life — of which only he is capable — has been permitted to pass virtually unopposed?

Stranger than Fiction

These are genuine extracts from a pamphlet "Facts about the Woman's angle on Australia" published recently by the Department of Immigration, Australia House, Strand, London. The italics are ours.

Is Australian British in outlook?

Though British in its foundations and traditions, Australia is a nation in its own right (well, almost) with its own national character (Mojo). A score of influences have moulded the people, the background and the way of living into a pattern which is (unhappily) far from a replica of Britain. Most women in fact think in Australia exactly as they were at home. You may even hear old friends you may miss the quiet beauty of the English countryside (you may even cherish companionship and unfettered freedom), and you will never see a husband say that in over 200 years old.

But Australia has a great deal of its own to offer which is just as attractive in another way—(The efficiency at beach, the 1950 lover craving on day's Rock the five chances at beach).

What about the pay packet?

Nothing hard and fast can be laid on wages and the cost of living. Generally your money is likely to be higher than in Britain, though your running expenses may also be higher—FIRE. Insurance you're not any better off! Many wages for madness (salary) are unusually high in Australia than in Britain.

Your living costs will vary according to the rent you pay and whether you grow fruit and vegetables yourself—Pigeons it just breeds with backward planning of Western delusion).

Are there many women in public life?

Australia was the first country to give the vote to women (and it will be less in great equal pay) but you may find that women play a less prominent part in public life than they do in France. There is no woman in law, and none is established cases, why this state of affairs should be changed? (Why not open a brothel?)

What sort of men do Australians eat?

Australian husbands may not eat the meat the way you have been used to, but there is no substantial difference. You will find the fish a new experience (especially our cod fish).

What are the shops like?

According to where you live, you have to go either a long way to the shops (D.F.'s is 400 miles from beach).

What about sporting facilities?

Sportswomen in Australia have even more facilities for their performance in men's or women's events. If you are a sports woman at Olympic Games or if chance club standard you will find ample opportunities to enjoy your chosen sport (swimming) don't mean competitively).

Is Australia a healthy place for children?

Australia rate of infant mortality is one of the lowest in the world. With ample food available, and the plentiful sunshine, small children get a very good start in life in Australia. (It's only when their little minds start to develop that the real test is.)

Will my children settle down quickly?

Let your children will be happy and they will settle in the open air life that is kindly climate makes so attractive.

The prompt graduation of schoolchildren in Australia has seen to many thousands of children really settled from overseas that newcomers are accepted quite naturally and they are soon part of the team—like appears then team).

Why should we be in Vietnam?

... We have obligations there.

What about School facilities?
(Local question)

Is there any
"class consciousness"?

The expressions "upper class, middle class and working class" don't convey much to Australians. True, there are suburbs containing largely of expensive houses; there are also people with incomes far above the average. But the concept of class in a classist category and yet a democratic way of life is quite alien to Australians—judging of whom—you'd soon be happily labelled a "dirty Foreign bastard" and cleared with the Dogs and Wogs!

How should I pack?

If you have been told to enter guidelines (that there is a landing charge in Australia and you would be immensely lucky (unless you had substantial capital with you) to get a suitable house in a short time, so you should have your heavy effects packed so that they will stand up to storage in Australia (and, of course, the trip home again).

What clothes shall I take with me?

Take all the clothes you have, including overcoats and waterproofs. (This way you can establish yourself as a bloody Foreigner and never opening your mouth.)

Should I take my TV set?

No. Because Australian TV is operating on 625 lines, compared with the EEC's scanning of 485 lines. (No because our programmes are lousy.)

Should I take my books?

Books are a personal matter. Australian book stores offer a wide range of books and publications of all types, including latest month's published overseas, but you may have some old favourites you would like to take with you (assuming that's where there).

Will I be happy in Australia?

If you realize quite clearly that you are starting a new life in a new country of unknown dimensions and are prepared for some difficulties in the interim, you and your family have every chance of happiness (some time after you arrive we will replace love it is your family must find change). Thousands before you have found happiness, property and a bright future for their children in Australia (some of them, of course, have been dead).

They will remember Britain with affection. But Australia is their chosen home—as we hope it will be soon (usually we know it will be yours because you can't afford a return ticket anyway).

P: (the straight man): "Well, here we are again."

S: (the comic): "In OZ magazine."

P: "Do you think people who buy OZ would be very interested in the houses we build?"

S: "Do you imagine the people who read our ads have ever been interested in buying houses?"

P: "Still, we're a very funny pair."

S: "Oh, yes, we are an incredibly funny pair, WE're sure of that."

Pettit & Sevitt: "We may not sell very many houses but at an extraordinarily reasonable price we have established ourselves as Australia's No. 1 exhibitionists."

the help of a survey and geographical expert, our careful editors would be pleased to complete safety, thanks to this notice.

Anyone who has been blown out while passing the area we out in this ad would only have himself to blame. Thanks to us.

I think the last copy of OZ is more like what the public expects from OZ. I particularly liked the cover and the article on Vietnam and God. Perhaps my attitude is slightly 'A' but I think most — on the whole — are all — people buy your magazine to read something intelligent as I was especially pleased at the absence of articles for lawbreakers on marijuana by Lester. That is the Whopper and other such rubbish. It is my hope that OZ continues along the lines it has now started on (please the revelling shaker).

Exactly a year ago "The Australian" commenced publication. To commemorate the event, OZ published the following photograph showing their editorial team hard at work. They looked so alert, so visionary, so go-ahead and behind them was that book-case providing a CONSTANT SOURCE OF REFERENCE.

An editorial conference in 1965. 1. Guy Harrison, 2. Hank Harrison, 3. Solly Chandler, 4. Max Newton, 5. John Stevens, 6. John Stevens.

WHY THESE MEN PRODUCED A NEW DAILY NEWSPAPER

Where are they now?

1. This is Guy Harrison, at present still on the lay-off, still but rumored to have been offered a job at the Sydney "Herald". 2. Hank Harrison, now Mr. Fox for News Ltd, Adelaide. 3. Solly Chandler, now with the Melbourne "Truth". 4. Max Newton, first editor of "The Australian", today a freelance journalist. 5. John Stevens, who is currently head of the London Bureau of the Sydney "Daily Mirror". 6. When we first published this photo we suggested that John Stevens was as far away from the main focus of action, he might as well have been out under the sea. He was then the Chief Sub-editor and still is.

CAREERS

Whilst openings in the country are not quite so wide as in the city, it behoves the country parent to have them all at his fingertips and to make sure that his son/daughter is shown through one of them as soon as possible. The following brief list of careers available to the country youth may be of some use. It is assumed of course that any country youth with a measure of intelligence has gone to the city long ago. However, some useful employment can usually be found for the feeble in mind or spirit who remain:

ART: For the really backward member of the family this has taken over from the Church. Some motor ability is necessary (e.g. your child should be able to hold a brush). But the work is easy, lucrative and requires no special skills. In fact the more backward the child, the more "primitive" (and therefore expensive) his work.

ORING: No training required: country people are born to it. Always job openings as fencer, wall-striker, lecturer, etc.

RUTCHING: Daily skills required: one good eyesight and ability to recognise rear from front end of sheep. The young man who takes up crutching has opportunities for travel, widening horizons, and constant exposure to some of the richest scenery in Rural Australia. Daily danger is that he may become too circumscribed in his outlook. This could be detrimental to his work.

AIRYING: The Last Resort. Occupational hazards are T.B. bats and flies. A reputable repellent is necessary. Long usage will make the odour unnoticeable. If your child takes up dairying he should have a head start in this direction anyway.

DITOR: Drank his way off every city daily. Now controls the fortunes of "Cocoonable Crutchers", "Dance Hemisphere" (revenue appointed) or "Reticulators' Diary" (published weekly). Follows the country editor's Golden Rule — mention each reader's name at least once per year. All editorials prove that Wool Is Here To Stay. Editorial policy has two main points: Get the wool prices wrong and get RICHARDIST: Requires large capital outlay, suitable area, year-round work involving pruning, planting, dusting, spraying, thinning, prapping, cultivating, rabbit and weed control, picking, grading, pecking etc. Good for the boy who likes hard work and outdoor life. Major part of crop is usually dumped as costs of selling via Sydney Markets exorbitant. This is called Producing for Home Consumption.

ICKING (fish, vegetables etc.): Depressed minorities only need apply. Whilst work is progress living conditions are adequate. At end of season, civic-mindedness ferments and pickers are burnt out, bulldozed in or moved on. Road maps not required — police will keep heading you in the right direction from one trap to another.

UEENS: In the country are invariably female; found only at Festivals, Shows and sometimes Balls.

ABBITTS: Only permissible way to make a living from rabbits is to do it the hard way by shooting, trapping, poisoning, getting and myxo.

HEARER: Good money while it is on, conditions range from filthy to vile. Contractors and publishers end up with most of the money. Why not be a Contractor or Publicist?

ELEGANT BDY: May be necessary to ride a bicycle. A good lad can go far.

OPPORTUNITIES

OPPORTUNITIES

the forty words right. Too much education is unhelpful for this occupation. The paper must be written at the level of its readers.

OOTBALL: The Prestige Profession of the country. If your son has a strong toe and head and weighs in the vicinity of 15 stone, this is the job for him. Knowledge of bare-knuckle-fighting and commands tactics useful.

OVERNMENT: Inefficiency essential for a good Government career. Unlike private industry, promotion depends on desperation — if your child can effectively block all action at his level, he will undoubtedly be promoted. If he should succeed in gaining Parliamentary Status, you can begin to worry. He can be kicked no higher and may be forced to retire on a pension.

EDONISM: Absolutely no opportunities available. See "City Careers".

MAIGRANT: This is a life-long career, open to all not pulled out by the local midwife. You recognise immigrants by the normal shape of their skulls and the refusal of locals to speak to them. They are accepted when they die, after which they are known as pioneers.

ACKEROO: G.P.S. Education minimum standard. A.g. College degree sometimes acceptable if led in of ample proportions and can sit on the tractor attachments.

IBBUTZER: Wrong country; socially suicidal religion.

ARCENY: Pickings sparse; extensive travelling required. RSL Clubs provide best hunting grounds. Favorites are Blowing the Sofa, Stealing the Paper Machine, or Battering up the War Hero and Passing a Oad Cheque.

ENIAL LABOUR: The only recognised profession open to daughters of the poor. Wages are usually in the vicinity of 30/- to £3 for a 70 hour week. Board and meals sometimes provided. Occupational hazards include every male within a 30 mile radius who can still walk. Comprehensive knowledge of jiu-jitsu and/or contraception a necessity.

EPOTISM: Shortest point of any really successful country career. Of more value financially than literacy, sanity, tact or Personal Whiteness.

UNIVERSITY GRADUATE: Text. edu. is of little practical use to the child unless he can be left there permanently (e.g. Refee, laboratory assistant, classmate), but of very real Social Value to the parents who can claim to be Putting Their Son/Daughter Through A Higher Education. If Graduate is foolish enough to return to place of birth he will feel a deep inward urge to go quietly mad. Only hope is to migrate to Canberra where this tendency will not be so noticeable.

ETERINARIAN: All right if you like cows (See Oolrying), but from other side i.e. inside. Path of practice is Difficult Ooliveries, Spaying, Castration and allied skills. Most property owners prefer to use their own methods, the main one of which is Get the Animal On Its Feet. Knowledge of mining methods and pit propping could be useful. Why not consider Crutching instead?

ODE CLASSER: Restricted almost entirely to sons of property owners who go on payroll at twice usual wages.

-FACTOR: The degree to which all hazards listed professions are affected by the important things of life in the country. Ability to Oink huge quantities of alcohol; standing with RSL; Golf or Bowls score; Football loyalty; Religion or Lodge; and Who's Your Old Man. All applied in varying degrees to aspirants for country success (with exception of football players).

OIK or YAHOO: Indispensable to any sphen setting. Being a type of beardsack hedge, the yolk prizes "179" flags off every tourist Holden, owns the only Sten gun in town, proves it early Sunday morning and is invariably the oldest recognised offspring of the wealthiest squatter. This is a respected profession but by its nature is not highly remunerative. Yohs often hold a second job e.g. palaceman, mayor, wealthiest squatter.

EALOT: Verbal yolk. Often wife of wealthiest squatter. Hon. Sec. Countrywoman's Association, Victoria League, Temperance Union and Church Guild. Her best blech show, floral print and hairy legs known on every platform from the School of Arts to the Mechanics Institute. A sinking bore.
